

Labour and delivery – What to bring to the Hospital.

This article will help you to prepare the essential items that you need to bring to hospital for your labour and delivery. The preparation should be done when you are about eight months pregnant. Pack the items listed in the list below in a bag and place the bag in a convenient place which is easy for you or your spouse to retrieve it when needed.

The list here is just a suggestion or a guide only, and you may make your own adjustment based on your own preference. Decide which items you will need for the labour and birth, the hospital stay and for the trip home for you and your baby.

For you

- Your pre-admission hospital documents (assuming that you have already done the pre-admission registration)
- You and your spouse identification documents such as passport (if you are a foreigner) or identification card. The hospital needs these in order to issue you the necessary documents for registration of birth.
- Antenatal card or report and other blood test reports (especially if you had your antenatal check-ups elsewhere and not in the hospital that you are planning to deliver)
- Your birth plan, if you have one
- Eyeglasses (for those who are wearing contact lenses)
- Toiletries (Pack a few personal items, such as a toothbrush and toothpaste, comb, soap and hair shampoo, facial cleanser, shower cap). Hospitals usually provide soap only, but you might prefer your own. A pre-pack toiletries kit is available for purchase in the hospital if you want it.
- Bring your own bath towel. Hospital will provide one if you request for it.
- A box of tissues.
- A sweater, especially for night use as it can be quite cold due to the air-con.
- A pair of flat, comfortable shoes for walking, a pair of slippers for toilet use and a pair of socks
- If you are on specific medications for your illnesses (other than multi-vitamins), please bring them along
- Snacks (crackers, biscuits) and something to read
- Comfortable nursing bras or regular bras
- The hospital will provide hospital gowns, mesh underwear and sanitary pads while you are here. You may opt to wear your own gowns, underwear or sanitary pads if you want. However, this is only allowed if you are recovering well and are already ambulating on your own.
- Bring a set of loose fitting clothes to wear upon discharge.

For your baby

- During the stay, the hospital will provide clean baby clothes and diapers. Therefore, these items are not necessary.
- Make sure you have the appropriate infant car seat installed in your car when you bring the baby home. Have the seat properly installed ahead of time and know how to buckle in your baby correctly.
- One new set of clothes, including a soft cap, socks or booties is needed for your baby to wear home. A blanket or a large soft towel will be useful for swaddling the baby during transportation

What not to bring

- Jewelries
- Infant milk powder, feeding bottles and pacifiers.
